Nomenclature of the Stud Book Compared With the Trot-

MORNING GLORY, REBEL'S SON!

Genteel, 2:281-"Pa" Bradley. Cecilian Chief Fillies-Mr. Saunders Buys Marie.

In the line of nomenclature Bartender for a son of The Bard, and Lisbon Mahi, is submitted for a runner good enough to win recently at Morris Park, while a trotting more by Temple Bar, dam Milk Maid, is called Bar Maid. Such names doubtless suggest parentage, but are not to be compared with Bon Voyage, the noted two-year-eld trotting bred colt of this season by Expedition, dam Bon Mot, or with Coruscate, the thoroughbred daughter of Chorister and Royal Gem. Tasty nomenciature may be found in the Trotting Register, but a glance through the pages of the Stud Book, where royal lineage mostly prevalls, shows that both euphony and suggestiveness are considered to a far greater extent. Look through vol. VIII. of the American Stud Book, the official organ of the New York Jockey Club for registration of thoroughbreds, and you will find Milestone, by Adamant, dam Miss Miles; Midsummer, by July, dam Lady Middleton; Kingful by Kingston, dam Useful; Recession, by Victory, dam Refection; Purseful, by Pursebearer, dam Complete and Indian Fairy, by Iroquois, dam Fairy, To these might be added others quite as neat but the list given suffices for the present instance and may be taken up another time. dition, dam Bon Mot, or with Coruscate,

PURPOSE TO ROB AND BURN

One of the Sussex Secret Band

Rule of the Club to Kill or Make Way With Any Member Who Refused to Take Part.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch,) STONY CREEK, VA., November 5,-Judge J. F. West convened the November term of Sussex Circuit Court Tues day. The grand jury returned indictments against the following parties, to-wit: Charles Smith, Fitz Hicks, Osborn Taylor. Frank Budgett, James Clements, William Tucker, Bud Tucker, Garfield Chambliss, Dorsay Chambliss, James Moyler, Charles Wrenn and Tally Brown. Each of these parties was indicted for burning the depot of the Southern Rall-way at Homeville Station, in this county. September 2d. These are the negroes, who, it has been stated, belong to; a secret club known as "Rough Riders," an account of which has been heretofore published in your columns.

The first of these cases tried was that of James Moyler, which, after a hot legal battle, lasting a day and a half, resulted in a hung-jury. The next case tried was Tally Brown, which ended yesterday with a verdict of guilty and three years in the penitentiary. The court is engaged this morning in the trial of the case against Charles Wrenn.

The only witness which the prosecution relies to convict the prisoners with the burning, is Charles Smith, a self-confessed accomplice, who is also indicted for fhe crime. Smith testified that he and fwelve other negroes, eleven of whom are named above, belonged to a secret cinb, which they called "Rough Riders," and that it was determined at a meeting of this club to rob and burn the depot on a certain night. day. The grand jury returned indict-the past month the McCue murder case been the absorbing topic of discussion in this city, and hardly has there been munifested a more general satisfaction than that to-day when information came to the effect that the alleged murderer of his wife had been found guilty of murder in the first degree. The interest manifested in this case, while due in a measure to the fact that the jury was composed largely of Petersburg citizens, was not largely of Petersburg citizens, was not due entirely to this fact. Hardly a person can be found who has not followed the case closely, and they have, as a rule, throughout hoped for a verdict such as the jury has rendered.
